Seriously Injured.

Mr. J. J. Ballard, son of Mr. Nick Ballard, is seriously ill, at his home in Chicago, suffering from a fractured skull, received last week when thrown from a horse he was riding. The gate of Mr. Ballard's barn had been left open a horse he had owned a few days got out. Without stopping to put on a saddle, Mr. Ballard jumped on another horse and started after the horse which had gotten out. He did not go but a short distance when the horse he was riding frightened at a dog and shied, throwing Mr. Ballard on the hard pike. His skull was fractured and he was also painfully bruised about the head and shoulders. At first it was believed that there was no hope for his recovery, but now the prospects for his recovery are good.—Marion Falcon.

Farmers Need It.

The progressive farmer is regarded as the TYPE of independence. He lives well, has practically everything he wants, and has money in the bank. Do you know what made the successful farmer? Why, it was simply the application of business principles and methods to agriculture. If you are a farmer and have a business education, you are simply making old Mother Earth give you a bare living, when she ought to yield you a surplus. Apply business principles—bookkeeping, etc.—to your farming operations, and you will be astonished to see how much more can be done by a little FIGURING than by a lot of SWEATING. For catalogue, address Dragoon's Practical Business College, Nashville, Tenn., or Paducah, Ky., or Evansville, Ind., or Washington, D. C.

Careful. Old Fashioned Party (with old fashioned prejudices)—Ah, very clever, dear sir. But I see it's written by J. B. Yates, and I want a book that my daughters may read. Give me something else!—Punch.

JUDGE HARLAN

Distinguished Kentucky Jurist and Member of Supreme Court Dies

Washington, Oct. 14.—The most distinguished Kentuckian at the National Capital and the dean of American jurists, John Marshall Harlan, died at 8:10 o'clock this morning at his Washington residence, 1401 Euclid street. He was in his seventeenth year and had lived until next June he would have served longer in the capacity of a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States than any other member of that body.

The last words of Justice Harlan were uttered a short time before his death and expressed regret that the members of his family grouped about his bedside had been forced to lose their rest last night.

John Marshall Harlan was born in Boyle county, Kentucky, June 1, 1833. After graduating from Centre College in 1850 he studied law at Transylvania and began the practice of it in a profession at Frankfort. In 1858 he was elected County Judge and in the same year he was the Whig candidate for Congress. Two years later he removed to Louisville, where he raised the Tenth Kentucky Infantry Regiment, with which he served in Gen. Thomas' division. Upon the death of his father, James L. Harlan, in 1863, Gen. Harlan resigned his commission in the army and soon after was elected Attorney General of Kentucky by the Union party. He filled the office until 1867. He was the Republican candidate for Governor in 1871 and again in 1873. In 1870 he declined the offer of a diplomatic position from President Hayes. The following year he was commissioned an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Justice Harlan was appointed to the Supreme bench by President Hayes November 29, 1877. The last opinion he delivered was the famous dissent from the majority verdict of the court in the American Tobacco Company case, in which the distinguished Kentuckian took the ground that the court had no right to read any meaning to the Sherman anti-trust law not expressly evident in the philosophy of the law, and opposed the court's permission to the trust to reform after a dissolution.

Resolutions.

The following is taken from the Smith Grove Times and as Rev. Stallings is a former Washington nonconformist it will be read with interest by his many friends in this county. He has been pastor for several and continues to grow in popularity the better he is known.

By the members of the Smiths Grove Baptist church: Whereas, There is at present a strong pressure being brought on our much beloved pastor, W. M. Stallings, by some other churches to secure his services as pastor, and

Whereas, We can not help but admire his wisdom in making an effort to do so, yet we are not willing to let him go, or that his connections with our church be severed at this time for the following reasons: First, he is the only pastor that the Smiths Grove Baptist church has had in the last 20 years that has given absolute satisfaction. At any rate we have never heard a dissenting voice from a member.

So we are constrained to believe that he is eminently fit and qualified by the grace of God to carry on the splendid work of our church that he so nobly began seven years ago and has conducted to its present high standing. While we would not disparage usefulness in larger fields, yet we can not refrain from expressing to him our high appreciation of his services and our earnest desire that he remain.

The growth of the church has been phenomenal under his care in more ways than members. We have greatly developed along the lines of missions; in fact all kinds of christian services, and there is a unity of love that exists between pastor and people that continues to grow stronger and stronger each year that he has been with us. And we will take this method of expressing to him our full and free endorsement of the stand taken by him on all questions that have come up before our people, for we fully appreciate the fact that our pastor has a high standing in the religious world.

REMINISCENCES

Of War Times by an Old Veteran Who Was There

Williamsburg, Ky., Oct. 8, 1911
Editor News-Leader:

I want a short space in your columns once more to have a talk with my old comrades. I have been trying to find time to write ever since our reunion on the 20th of September, but as we grow old our time seems to be all taken up with cares of this life, and I am one of the busy old men and will have to take Sunday afternoon to write. Say boys, do you remember 49 years ago today at Perryville what a hot time we had. It was so near some of our homes that our fathers and mothers could hear the constant roar of muskets and artillery work was suspended. The neighbors gathered in squads to talk over the probable results and anxious mothers spent a sleepless night but next day many of the good old fathers were on the field of battle to learn the fate of their boys. The old fathers are all gone now and their boys are now old men and some of you remember that fifty years ago on the 27th of September twenty or more of us left for the seat of war from my father's home when he had prepared a good dinner for the boys before leaving. Fathers and mothers were there to bid the boys good by and it was the last farewell with many of them. I won't attempt to tell of the separation as I don't believe the great old generation would understand it as I felt it then. Think of the green, big honest farmer boy leaving home for the first time and what a trial it was for him and how homesick he got. But after the homesick soldiers were off they made splendid soldiers and returned home with honor. Now to think back over the fifty years that have passed. It don't seem to be but a few fleeting years but if a fortune was placed in trust for us fifty years hence, we would never hope to possess it. Comrades, I don't feel old, I work every day, and enjoy life and am writing without glasses. I have never seen anything in regard to our reunion on the 20th of September, the 48th anniversary of the battle of Chickamauga. I want to say it was the best we ever had, while we missed Prof. Colvin and his crew to entertain us with their oratory. We had to supply the deficiency with the children and they did splendidly, but there was Capt. Offutt, I came very near forgetting him. He gave us a good talk and with his ready wit brought great applause. There were 23 old soldiers present and I had fire of my company present more than when I ever had before. Eqs. Hendren had us lined up and our pictures taken. We are a motley looking set but I guess the rest of you will be as ugly as we are when you get as old as we are. We live until September the 20th we will meet at the same place. All is due Eqs. Hendren for the success of our reunion. I had great joy in meeting my old comrades.

The verdict given in favor of William Con Bell, son of the late Judge W. C. Bell, for $17,500 damages against the Seattle, Renton and Southern Railway by a Seattle, Washington, court a short time ago, for the death of his father, who was killed eighteen months ago in an accident while riding on one of the defendant company's cars in Seattle, was reversed Monday.

Judge J. T. Ronald of the Superior Court, named a settlement when he ordered the verdict set aside. The company claimed that the verdict was excessive in that the child had already inherited a large estate and was not dependent upon his father for support. The text of the decision has not been received here. Mrs. Bell, who was injured in the same accident, brought the suit as administrator, and she having died a few months ago the case was revived. The case had been hard fought by both sides and this termination seems to the plaintiff's lawyers as a surprise. A suit for damages to Messrs. P. H. Burton and Miss Martha Thompson, by reason of the death of their mother, Mrs. Bell, is now pending in the Seattle court.

She was extremely popular in the neighborhood in which she lived and was held in high esteem by all who knew her.—Marion Falcon.

Judge O'Rear is accepting the Republican nomination severely criticised the Railroads for the issue of free passes to public officials and condemned the officials for receiving them. All this is very well and good and we had thought highly of the Judge for his bold stand. But this high ideal of the Judge's seems like many of his other ideas to have been straw for it has been since charged that on that very day the Judge's family rode from Frankfort to Louisville on three passes issued by the Railroad. We had hoped that this statement was not true, because a pass to the Judge's family is tantamount to a pass to the Judge and the statute against free passes was passed by the Legislature to prevent corrupt influences being used to influence public men.

Now we can see no instance where the issue of a pass could conduce more to corruption than to those whose duty it is to interpret and construe our laws and especially when to a Judge of our highest Court. However the charge has been openly made by the Lexington Herald and others.

It is up to the Judge to explain. The people want to know, and by explain is not meant "dodge." The people can see artful dodgers at most any County fair.

Farmers Institute.

The Washington County Farmers Institute began its session Tuesday and concluded yesterday. Messrs. W. H.
Strange, Geo. McCombs and Geo. G. Witty are the instructors this year and are discussing
many farm topics in an interesting and instructive manner. On Tuesday afternoon Hon. W. C.
McClure delivered an excellent talk on Good Roads, which was listened to with the best of attention as his subject was one in which all felt an interest. It was with pleasure we noted that there was a much better attendance at the Institute this year than there has been in previous years. We believe this is the result of progress in the conduct of the Institute and a general desire for more progressive farming. Tuesday's session was opened by Invocation by Rev. E. C. Lawson and on Wednesday the Invocation was given by Rev. Father Enis, of St. Rose.

Quarterly Court.

The Quarterly Court was in session Monday and Tuesday of this week. The principal case tried was that of J. M. Trent vs.
Keeling and Yeager, which was a controversy over some property sold by Trent to Keeling and Yeager, with which they covered their warehouse in Williamsburg. They alleged that the roofing was defective and set up a counterclaim. The suit was brought originally in the Springfield Police Court and a jury found for the plaintiff the full amount of his claim. The case was appealed to the Quarterly Court when the jury found for Defendant thirty odd dollars on his counterclaim.
The case took a day and one half, and we understand it will be appealed to the Circuit Court.
